EDM:
 We can be proud as we all start the second ex now. CF 72 was printed, fans are reading it - smiling. Maybe, the new number will be ready in time.

Peter De Weerd:

I am the agent for Belgium for the Eurocon at Stockholm. You can e-mail me on Peter.De.Weerd@belgacom.be and for the dutch my name is De Weerd with capital D and i shoould be listed under the D and not under the W.

Erwin van Ballegoij:

Cloverfield, the last film of last night, left the audience dazed and confused. Many considered walking out of the movie in the first half hour. That part was a boring homemovie of a farewell party, terribly shot as these kinds of movies usually are. Then a loud bang, a short black out (why short, how did the power get back so fast) and trembling buildings. Later, when everybody is on the roof they see another explosion that looks like fireworks. What was that? We never found out. Then a lot of running with bumphy shots, some glimpses of a monster, some strange critters in the underground, soldiers trying to stop the monsters without much succes. Apparently the main characters die at the end of the film, but what was attacking them, what was it all about and did Manhattan survive in the end? A lot of questions and no answers. Was this a good film or not? Even this question cannot be answered.

Jan:

Ducking away behind a tiny computer screen while the whole room erupts in sing-along filking, lead by Annemarie and Kirsti (er, "around the world in a yellow soup bowl") to be followed by the Ballegoijen singers. Wonderfully enthusiastic people all, even those in the room, but not quite my cup of tea. (Admittedly, it IS nice to watch/listen in.)

Heidi:

Filking is fun! Today, for the first time in years, there was singing outside the bar, in daytime, without large amounts of beer. Kirsti and Annemarie made up some beautiful lyrics about Rommeldam, travelling the world in a yellow submarine containing vegetable soup, fantasy writers ruining our sense of wonder by writing too many sequels which is only appreciated by fans with large fireplaces, and some more. My girls and me got inspired by Star Wars and sung a sweet song about losing your leg in the library. More of this stuff next year, please, Belgians!
