It seems that fans are tired of writing, it's sunday and only one issue is published. Hopefully you fill both sides of this....

Sylvana Freyberg:

This is my second time at the Eastercon. I enjoyed the company of friends who I have met last year in Harrogate, and had a unexpected lunch with new friends, which was a little highlight for me. I really enjoy conventions, meeting like minded people. The talk "Science of Movies" was another highlight, and of course the Kaffeeklatsch with John Scalzi. I definitely will read his "Old Man's War" soon.

Hans-Ulrich B"ttcher:

There were many interesting programme items on Sunday. David Hardy talked about (and displayed) space art from the 19th and the 20th century: The next lecture was Gerry Webb's lecture about the history of the British Interplanetary Society (BIS); during the first decades most members of the BIS were in SF fandom. After the lecture Gerry Webb honoured David Hardy with the Fellowship of the BIS. Another highlight was Tom Briggs's lecture on the Enigma machine (and Colossus). After the lecture an original Enigma-Maschine (the German term) was displayed and demonstrated in the Tereshkova.

Sabine Furlong:

Morning. Well that was a good night last night. Had a fun time with friends at a room party. A lot of good scotch was had...head...ouch Ah, well, what else is new on an Eastercon Monday morning. Not sure what to say about the programme at the moment. I think brain needs to be clearer to make a better critique. I was busy enough over the con, but not at all stressed out about choosing or missing items. I had time to go for a swim and sit around with friends but I might have been happier with more choice. The items I did enjoy were in the smallest rooms which were all packed to the brim. I think a rethink on programming might be in order. Well, saying that, now off to a programme item.

Cristina Macia:

Another Eastercon comes and goes... my English is not improving a lot but I still manage to have a great time. Thank you lovely guys for bearing with me, and please have fun with all my typos. See you in my Celsius festival whenever you want!

Dave Lally:

Yes another Eastercon comes and then ... sadly...goes. Now onto the BIG one: Dublin WORLDCON in my home town of Dublin. And then (a plug) TITANCON/Eurocon in nearby Belfast - with our GoH: George R R Martin. B C N U all there!!!

That was Ytterbium - EasterCon 2019.

The End.
